THE DUPONT VISITOR AND EDUCATION CENTER

Featuring “A Window Through Time”

Stories of the Beginnings

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

THE ARRIVAL AND ENTRANCE

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

THE PUGET SOUND OVERLOOK

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

THE VISITOR CENTER CAMPUS

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

AERIAL VIEW OF THE CAMPUS

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

A WINDOW THROUGH TIME

The present-day Puget Sound panorama, with Ice Age and marine-life exhibits.

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

ICE AGE WINDOW

Transparent LED glass reveals a glacier and a speculative meteor-impact sequence.

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh

THE VISITOR CENTER

FIRST NATION VISITOR CENTER | DUPONT, WASHINGTON

On a bluff overlooking Puget Sound, the proposed 15,000-square-foot center tells the story of early human settlement at this DuPont site approximately 12,000 years ago. Inside, interactive exhibits bring the Ice Age landscape and cultural history to life. Outside, garden experiences invite exploration.

15,000	2.5 million	$25	8 hours
square feet	annual visitors projected	ticket per person	average stay projected

Planning concept. Attendance, pricing and dwell time are unverified projections; archaeological interpretation and site claims require consultation with the relevant Tribes and experts.

Creative Concept Development by : Michael McHugh